Below is the text of an employee communication from the Chief Executive Officer of Eidos Therapeutics, Inc., which was sent on October 5, 2020.

Hi All,

Hope you are doing ok. As some of you know, this morning we had the opportunity to formalize the bonds that already tie us (Bridge and Eidos) together. There is no one entity without the other, and the history as many of you know stretches all the way back to when just a handful of us were working in dilapidated offices on University Ave in Palo Alto on a molecule not many believed in. More people believe now, that's for sure. And the hope has always been that we get to be there when the belief becomes reality and we, data willing, distribute this product in an ethical manner to patients and physicians alike who need it.

The move this morning helps us all get to that future together. The way you all responded to the challenge of enrolling our ATTRIBUTE-CM trial reminded me of the way you responded to the challenge of trying to figure out target concentrations in the absence of any animal model years before that. It reminds me that this is THE TEAM to see this molecule through the clinic and into the marketplace. Being Eidos, but fully under the Bridge umbrella, will allow you all to keep doing what you have been doing but with fewer distractions, more resources, and a clearer understanding that you work at a place focused on helping patients and stewarding acoramidis for the LONG TERM.

I'll be setting up some time to answer to any questions with each of you early this week. I guess the 3 takeaways I would have are:

1. Nothing really changes day to day – it will still be Eidos, a Bridge company. It will still have its own business cards, own identity, own staff, etc. There will be no layoffs or anything like that as part of this. Bridge is set up to be a family of affiliates – Eidos was once a private company at Bridge and will be again. It isn't all that different from where we came from
2. The first upside you will notice is that this transaction is expected to immediately increase the value of your equity and will provide an opportunity for most of you to choose to receive either cash or BridgeBio equity for your vested shares/options. Apart from the immediate impact, at closing you'll become part of the BridgeBio compensation plan and should expect to receive annual equity grants going forward which will continue to account for acoramidis' value as well as the 20+ additional programs in the BridgeBio pipeline
3. The second and more important upside you will feel is fully eradicated barriers to building acoramidis to its full potential. With the completion of ATTRIBUTE-CM enrollment, NOW IS THE TIME to invest heavily in this drug and this team's capabilities. That means additional sponsored clinical studies. More research collaborations. More diagnostic collaborations. Stepped up formulation and backup strategies. And the marrying of this program with other interests we have in the genetic cardiovascular and renal spaces. I'd welcome your thoughts on what more we can be doing to maximize the opportunity for our drug and for patients

I'm around and happy to chat. Thanks all and talk soon,
Neil
